Instructions

Split participants into small groups and give each group a set of materials.

Have the groups create their "Perfect City", advise them to think about things like; the kind of people who live there, transport system, type of energy used, what food is available and where it comes from, what the homes look like, what kind of jobs there are, laws etc.

Groups can draw their city or arrange objects to create their city.

Have each group present their city and have participants discuss which city they'd like to live in most and why.

Debrief

- ▶ How do you think the area you live in has changed in the last 50 years?
- ▶ How much do you think it will change in the next 50 years?
- ▶ What do you think is the most important thing to think about when designing a city?
- ▶ From the cities people created, what part would you most like to see happen in real life?
